EU BUSINESS SCHOOL TOPS CEO MAGAZINE MBA RANKINGS FOR THE SIXTH YEAR RUNNING

- For the sixth consecutive year, EU Business School's (EU) online MBA is ranked number one worldwide and its on-campus MBA listed in the top tier by CEO Magazine.
- The outstanding results achieved in CEO Magazine's global MBA list 2020 reaffirm EU as a leading provider of quality business education, reinforcing its position as a top international business school.
- CEO Magazine analyzed over 160 schools from 27 countries to produce this year's Global MBA Rankings.

EU Business School is proud to announce that its online MBA program has been ranked number one worldwide in the 2020 online MBA rankings by CEO Magazine for the sixth year running. In addition, EU's on-campus MBA ranked in the top tier of programs for a sixth consecutive year while its DBA program featured in the 2020 Global DBA Listing, designed to showcase the market's premier DBA providers. These results pay testament to EU's mission to provide a first-class business education through offering an experiential and pragmatic approach to teaching, a connected international community and personalized attention.

EU is delighted that it continues to be recognized for offering an outstanding business education. CEO Magazine's MBA rankings are fact-based, assessing institutions on a variety of aspects including international diversity, class size, gender parity, international exposure, the quality of faculty and faculty to student ratio, among others. The points-based system employed by CEO Magazine aims to allow students to make informed decisions on the best MBA programs available across the globe.

CEO Magazine has been showcasing top business schools from around the world since it launched in 2008. This year's ranking saw the highest number of schools and programs represented to date, with participants from across North America, Europe, Australia, New Zealand and the BRICS. A total of 161 business schools and 303 different programs were analyzed in this year's rankings.

Mr. Carl Craen, vice president and managing director of EU Business School, showed his satisfaction on receiving the results. He stated, "I am elated to see that CEO Magazine's Global MBA Rankings once again recognize the high-quality business education that EU offers students across the globe. We are especially proud of our online MBA which grows annually and is allowing us to extend the reach of our first-class business education, shaping even more business leaders of the future."
